Writing

Thanksgiving, to Native American cultures, is not a yearly event, it is a daily practice. Giving thanks is an important part of living in balance, maintaining the great circle of giving and receiving, one of the great circles of life that encompass all of Earth. Choose any living thing and think of its connection to other living things sharing similar habitats. What do they give and what do they receive in the web of life? Then create a food web of your own backyard or vacation backyard.

Spelling

Spelling Words are available each week in the newsletter/homework sheet. The support activities and definitions for Wordly Wise Level 3 will be available online at <http://www.accessalt.pps.k12.or.us/> under Ms. Clarke's page. We are looking into the possibility to order a book for each child at their particular level. Until then we will continue with WW3 and I have introduced spelling patterns for students.
