David F. VS. Patches the bear

David was just a country boy, who was a little like the boy who cried wolf. Now Patches on the other hand was a big fat grizzly bear. David believed he could do things by just talking. For example, David has a dog named Lettuce who wasn't trained. David would say "Sit!" to Lettuce but he didn't do anything. Maybe that's why the cops found David's body mauled next to a rock and the marks were from bear claws. Well I know the real story. Here it goes.

David was strolling a long a little trail trying to get to know his surroundings for he had just moved to the strawberry fields. Just then he came to a big rock beside a small tree. He went over to it and made a nice resting place. Little did he know it was big bears rock. Poor little David.

David thought it would be cool to play a little prank on the nearby villagers and hikers. Here is how the prank went. David went to gather branches in the trees to pretend to make a fake bear to fool the villagers. He set it up then would yell "Ahh bear!" and all the nearby people would come and find out that there was no bear. The villagers thought this was nasty and mean so they got him back without saying anything. They didn't tell him about Big Bears rock.

Then a couple minutes passed and then David looked up. There in front of him was Big Bear. It was just across the stream. David started to get scared when the bear started to swim across the stream. "No, go away!" yelled David. But Patches the bear didn't go away. "This is my rock not yours!" chirped David again. And before you know it Big Bear was on his rock next to David F's mauled body.
