

Snow Days

A blizzard has blown in, so Lance, Billie Jean, Rudy, and Liz will have the day off from school. The children are happy about having the day off to take advantage of their favorite winter activities — going to Foster Lake, Art Hill, the school yard, and Capitol Hill. The distances they must travel to reach their destinations are one, two, three, and four miles. Each will be bringing something to play with — a sled, ice skates, skis, and a top hat and lumps of coal. Each will also wear a different type of headgear — a scarf, muffler, ski mask, and ear muffs. Combine this information with the children's last names — Gibson, Johnson, Righetti, and Sempleton — and you'll be on your way to finding out how they spent their snow day.

1. Johnson's headgear is made of fur, and she is pulling her play equipment behind her with a rope.
2. Gibson's equipment is longer than he is tall.
3. The sledding hill is farther away than where Righetti goes, but not as far as the ski slope.
4. Lance wears headgear most suitable for his activity.
5. Capitol Hill is the only ski slope in the area.
6. Billie Jean wears a scarf.
7. Sempleton goes only half as far as the distance to Foster Lake to build her snowman and only one third as far as Liz.

	Gibson	Johnson	Righetti	Sempleton	1 mile	2 miles	3 miles	4 miles	Foster Lake	Art Hill	school yard	Capitol Hill	ear muffs	scarf	muffler	ski mask	sled	ice skates	skis	top hat
Lance
Billie Jean
Rudy
Liz
1 mile
2 miles
3 miles
4 miles
Foster Lake
Art Hill school yard
Capitol Hill
ear muffs scarf muffler ski mask
sled ice skates skis
top hat

